(2) Copies of any applicable contingency fee contracts with Litigating Local Government; and, certifications that said contingent fee agreements have been waived.

Copies of the fee contracts are provided herewith. Motley Rice and Briol & Benson, PLLC certified in the certifications to the National Contingency Fee Fund the following on behalf of each of their clients: “I waive enforcement against all of my client Litigating Subdivision, of all Fee Entitlements (other than under State Back-Stop Agreements) arising out of or related to any or all Qualifying Representations of any Participating Litigating Subdivisions.”

(3) A description of the complexity of the legal issues involved in the MDL Matter, In Re National Prescription Opiate Litigation, MDL 2804 and addressed by Counsel; work done by Counsel to directly benefit their Litigating Local Government clients, and the reasonableness and appropriateness of the fees requested in light of the considerations found in Minn. R. Prof. Cond. 1.5.

In February of 2015, Washington County Attorney Pete Orput and Ramsey County Attorney John Choi met with Mark Briol and Scott Benson to discuss the devastating effects that opioid addiction was having on the residents of their counties and on the services provided by their counties. These two county attorneys asked Briol & Benson to consider whether a case could be made against opioid manufacturers, distributors, and others who had caused this opioid crisis. Briol & Benson began their research and discovered that the Motley Rice firm had brought lawsuits representing the City of Chicago and counties in California. Working with Linda Singer from Motley Rice, Benson began to outline for County Attorneys Orput and Choi possible causes of action that could be asserted against those who caused the opioid crisis, including under the Minnesota False Claims Act, the Minnesota Prevention of Consumer Fraud Act, the Minnesota Unlawful Trade Practices Act, and the Minnesota Deceptive Trade Practices Act, the Minnesota False Statement in Advertising Act, and common law claims for fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, and negligent failure to warn. The firms also recommend a public nuisance claim and an unjust enrichment claim. Each of these claims required research and work to develop, but the public nuisance claim, in particular, took a great deal of thought and complexity to establish and argue in a way that would result in recovery for the county clients. That included significant work to address potential causation issues raised in other opioid litigation, including the impact of potentially intervening factors, such as the impact of other drug use and the transition to heroin and, more recently fentanyl, and an understanding of the steps required to abate the opioid epidemic in the cities and counties in Minnesota. Minnesota also has an overlapping network of consumer protection statutes that had to be addressed in formulating litigation claims.

In March, 2015, Briol, Benson and Singer held a meeting with county attorneys representing Hennepin, Dakota, Ramsey, Anoka and Washington counties to gauge their interest in pursuing litigation against those who caused the opioid crisis. At this meeting, and for the following two plus years, Briol, Benson and Singer explained the basis of the cases against manufacturers, distributors, and others who caused the opioid crises and conducted research on the effects of opioids on the residents of the State of Minnesota as well as the potential burdens that would be faced by any county who took on the obligation of being a plaintiff in a lawsuit. These discussions culminated in a meeting in October of 2017 for all interested Minnesota County Attorneys at the offices of the Hennepin County Attorney called by Hennepin County Attorney Michael Freeman at which any firm interested in representing Minnesota clients was asked to present to the assembled group. Briol, Benson, and Singer presented at this meeting and at subsequent meetings with counties and the City of Minneapolis. This resulted in Motley Rice and Briol & Benson being hired by the clients listed above.

The law firms then commenced working with their clients to draft detailed and fact specific complaints for each of their clients detailing the effects that the opioid crisis had on each of the municipalities represented and setting forth the legal causes of action against the defendants. After each complaint was filed, the cases were transferred to the Multi District Litigation, In Re National Prescription Opiate Litigation, MDL 2804.

When discovery commenced in the MDL, each plaintiff was required to complete a “Plaintiff Fact Sheet” requiring detailed information from each of the ten municipalities represented by the law firms. A copy of the blank Plaintiff Fact Sheet requesting information from each municipality is attached. Obviously, the Plaintiff Fact Sheets took a great deal of work and coordination with our ten clients to fully and accurately complete.

Recovery of settlements on behalf of our Minnesota clients required significant work nationally to bring the Defendants to the negotiating table. Motley Rice has worked across every group of Defendants, in every substantive area of the opioid litigation and settlement, constituting the largest and most significant commitment of financial and human resources of any law firm in the opioid litigation. Specifically, Motle Rice attorneys:

- Served as counsel in the litigation that gave rise to the MDL, representing Santa Clara County and the City of Chicago in the first opioid cases filed in 2014;
- Served as MDL Co-Lead and Co-Chairs of the Manufacturer Track and Law & Briefing;
- Led settlement negotiations with and for the MDL and State Attorneys General (“AG”);
- Acted as sole- or co-lead counsel in four trials against the settling defendants (CT2, CA, WA, and WV)—half of the 8 trials that proceeded prior to the settlements. Motley Rice also served as lead counsel in three cases that proceeded to the eve of trial (CT1-Distributors; NH-J&J; and RI-Distributors);

- Developed the IQVIA (prescribing) data relied on across MDL and state court cases;
- Handled key depositions and experts, including the development of the abatement model and plan that are the reason for this litigation; and
- Served as the point of contact with DOJ and DEA.

Motley Rice took an early leadership role once the MDL was formed, with Joe Rice appointed Co-Lead. Linda Singer was co-chair of the Manufacturer Track, and Motley Rice co-lead the cases against Purdue and Janssen. The case against Purdue laid the foundation for and fueled the cases against other manufacturers. Motley Rice has represented bellwethers in each phase of the MDL and against each set of defendants. (Summit County/ Akron in CT1, Huntington in CT2, Chicago in CT5, and Montgomery County in CT7). In its bellwether work, Motley Rice effectively shouldered the burden of substantial defensive discovery (one bellwether trial alone required 2,400 pages of discovery responses) but also handled complaint and brief drafting, arguments, negotiations with defendants, and status conferences, keeping these cases on track and setting the framework for follow on cases.

Motley Rice attorneys have been at the forefront of discovery efforts prior to the MDL, throughout its existence, and in state cases. Discovery conducted by Motley Rice for Chicago prior to the MDL shaped MDL discovery against manufacturers and headed or staffed affirmative discovery teams for various manufacturers, distributors or pharmacies.

Motley Rice's active state court litigation efforts created favorable litigation-wide precedents and expanded the body of available evidence. Prior to June 30, 2021, Motley Rice took 292 affirmative depositions outside of the MDL.

Motley Rice has been responsible for complaints, dispositive motions, discovery disputes, Daubert motions, mandamus petitions and interlocutory appeals, JPML filings concerning the scope of the MDL, and bankruptcy actions. Motley Rice had lead responsibility for dispositive motions in the bellwether cases (CT1-4 and CT6) and drafted or edited more than 100 briefs litigation-wide. Motley Rice also provided active on-call legal support during every trial and for settlement-related issues.

Motley Rice was responsible for identifying, recruiting, vetting, preparing, presenting, and refining numerous experts who have been critical to the litigation, including taking the lead on the key abatement expert, Dr. Caleb Alexander, data analyst, Lacey Keller, addiction expert Dr. Andrew Kolodny, "gateway" (heroin/fentanyl) expert Dr. Daniel Ciccarone, and pharmacy expert Carmen Catizone, former Executive Director of the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy.

Motley Rice was actively involved in managing the document repository, initial discovery, and e-discovery protocols from the formation of the MDL, participating in all aspects of managing an unprecedented 59,636.34 GB (as of June 2021) of ESI in the MDL document platform.

Joe Rice led all settlement negotiations for the MDL. In approximately 48 months, he led the MDL Plaintiff's Executive Council in industry-wide settlement negotiations and to successful conclusion of multiple bankruptcies (Purdue, Mallinckrodt, and Insys) and promoted a unique abatement fund settlement process through the unification of subdivisions and states by working together. His 30+ years of experience in complex, high-stakes litigation, gave Mr. Rice unique opportunities to perform a critical role in bringing these settlements to an advantageous conclusion for the country's opioid casualties.

Attorneys from Briol & Benson and Motley Rice have worked with our Minnesota clients and held meetings with elected officials to explain the settlements, issues involved in the various bankruptcies, and numerous other legal and practical issues that have arisen surrounding the complexities of the use of opioid settlement funds.

On August 11, 2021, Briol & Benson along with attorneys from Lockridge Grindal Nauen and other attorneys representing municipalities organized our clients to engage in a discussion as to how to negotiate a split with the Minnesota Attorney General in settlement funds obtained for the State of Minnesota. After much discussion, the municipalities agreed to a unified position that would result in obtaining the largest recovery for the State of Minnesota. After significant negotiation, the Attorney General's office and representatives of Minnesota counties and cities agreed to split the settlement funds with the municipalities receiving 75 percent of the settlement funds and the State of Minnesota receiving 25 percent of the settlement funds.

Based on the complexity and novelty of the legal issues presented in seeking recovery for our clients, the fact that Motley Rice and Briol & Benson began addressing these issues even before 2015 when the first meetings in Minnesota occurred, and that obtaining this result for our Minnesota clients required extraordinary time and expense for research, experts, trials, and all of the work described above, the request for payment from the Minnesota Backstop is reasonable and appropriate in light of the considerations found in Minn. R. Prof. Cond. 1.5. Moreover, Minn. R. Prof. Cond. 1.5 (a)(8) includes a consideration as to whether the fee is fixed or contingent and 1.5(c) recognizes that parties may agree to a contingent fee. Agreeing to a contingent fee arrangement places all the risk on the law firms to bear the expenses, time for lawyers and legal professionals, and fees from experts against the possibility of no recovery. Both firms were precluded from taking other work based on the obligations of this case. Moreover, each of our clients agreed to a 25 percent contingent fee. Motley Rice and Briol & Benson would be justified in claiming the full 25 percent contingent fee. But, based on the ruling of Judge Polster in the MDL and as a requirement to waive that contingent fee in order to receive funds from the National Contingency Fee Fund and the Minnesota Backstop, the firms agreed to reduce their contingent fee to 15 percent. This allowed more money to go to combat the opioid crisis for each of our clients.

The result obtained in these cases on behalf of our Minnesota clients has been extraordinary, obtaining over $74 million for our Minnesota clients in this settlement round alone to be used for opioid remediation programs for each of our clients. A draft of this application was provided to each of our clients asking them if they had any objection to the application. None of our clients indicated that they had an objection and the following counties affirmatively indicated they had no objection: Hennepin County, St. Louis County, Itasca County, and Sibley County.
